The Energy Institute's Young Professional Network (YPN) is expanding its coverage across the South West and South Wales Region with the launching of the EI South Wales YPN Hub. Students and young professionals in the industry will have the opportunity to meet and create a strong network in South Wales to share knowledge and best practices of the energy industry.

In this first event the Energy Institute welcomes its youngest Fellow, Ian Beynon FEI, who is originally from South Wales and is currently the Head of Energy Reduction and Engineering at amber energy based in Cardiff.

Ian will explain how his training and professional experience led him to amber energy and how pursuing professional membership through the Energy Institute helped propel his career in the energy industry.
